

Lonely for Light

by Erin Crowley

February 14, 2007

Notes: Yesterday an 18-year-old boy went into a familiar mall near where Dave and I used to live in Salt Lake City and started arbitrarily targeting and killing people. I was deeply affected by the story and this is my musical way of coming to terms with it.

---

This thin veneer of order dissolves
Of guns and blood and broken bodies shattered glass and how I

Cower from the weight of fitting this new horror into my Understanding pause be still be still pass by you angel of death

CHORUS:

And oh,
That the world contains such darkness
And oh,
I am lonely lonely for the light

Eyes wide pulsing frozen seconds reach out our hands to any Stranger we can touch be reached for all we need is company

CH

Bridge:

And in these prism moments we are alone with ourselves
Clinging to the vestiges of hope that's dimmed with carnal fear

And when the mist of darkness overwhelms we pull together
Our little lights grow stronger they grow stronger pooled together
